Mauritius Ocean Classic (01 to 04 July 2009) - destination: Mauritius Island

Mauritius the perfect holiday destination!

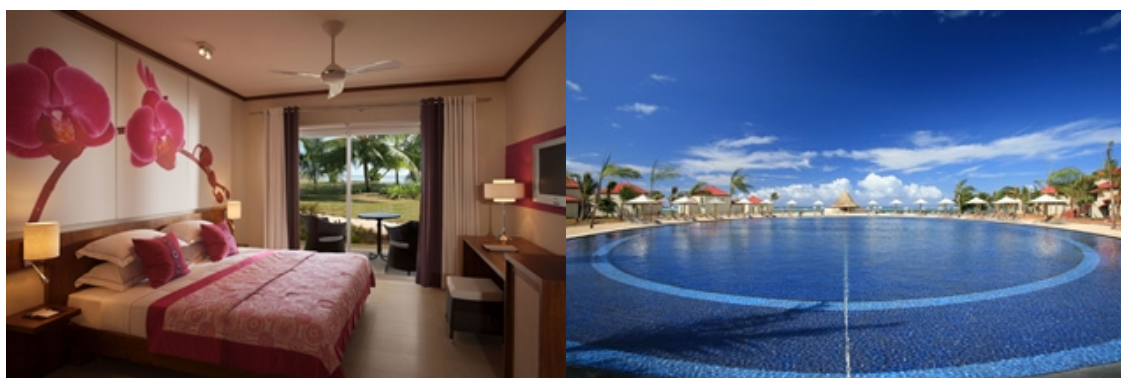

Mauritius lies just north of the Tropic of Cancer in the South west of the Indian Ocean. The main island is volcanic in origin and has a varied landscape. Large green plateaus lie alongside the mountains full of luxurious vegetation. Many of the mountainsides provide panoramic views over sugarcane fields and on to the ocean. Coral reefs protect the many crystal-clear lagoon areas and the sea ripples gently onto the beaches, edged with coconut palms and filaos trees.

The various waves of immigration have created a cultural mosaic that is typically Mauritian. Creole, originally French-based, is now the everyday language. Although the official language is English, French is probably more widely spoken. Bhojpuri, originating from Bihar in India, is spoken by a sizeable number of people, as are other Indian languages, as well as some Hakka, Mandarin and Urdu.

Mauritius has always been a hospitable place, and the tradition continues in modern times, providing a warm welcome for travelers looking for something different.

It’s all quite magical - a fabulous shoreline, lush greenery, rare tree specimens, flowering shrubs, plants and turquoise waters.
